Football Is Navy Day Feature

Allen Knight, local chairman of the arrangements for entertaining the public and the crew of the USS Columbus in honor of Navy Day, yesterday announced that plans are complete, the biggest event being the football game Sunday afternoon at 2:15 in the Monterey High School Field, when the 12th Infantry, representing the Army, will play against the ship's crew, representing the Navy. The Fort Ord Band will enliven things and the grandstands will be a colorful spectacle.

The official schedule for the three-day celebration follows:

Saturday, 9:00-10:00, KDON broadcast from USS Columbus as it sails into the harbor; 10:00, docking of the USS Columbus at the breakwater pier; 10:30, Mayors of the three Peninsula cities and Fort Ord officials and other dignitaries boarding USS Columbus; 12:00, luncheon for these official guests aboard; 1:00-4:00, visiting hours for the public, with plenty of boats supplied for transportation from the end of breakwater pier to the ship; 2:30, baseball game at Monterey City Park, Carmel American Legion vs. the crew; 5:00, reception by local Mayors at Memory Garden, and open house by various fraternal organizations; 8:00, searchlight display from ships; 8:30, ball at the Bali Room, Del Monte Training School, Red Cross supplying the hostesses.

Sell Out Expected For Paganini Quartet Benefit Concert Sunday

Final arrangements have been completed this week for the concert by the Paganini Quartet, to be heard at Sunset Auditorium Sunday evening, October 26, under the auspices of the Monterey County Symphony Association. A brisk sale of tickets at all local music stores has been reported, and a sell-out is expected. Proceeds of the concert will go to the fund being raised by the Symphony Association for support of the orchestra, which is now in rehearsal on Monday evenings at the Carmel High School, preparatory to commencing its current season.

The first concert of the symphony orchestra will be held at Sunset Auditorium on December 3. The conductors have broadcast a request for additional viola and cello players to complete the string section.

The Quartet, which made its first nationwide tour last year amid the praise of critics in all parts of the country, has programmed three interesting and varied quartets for its first appearance at Carmel. These will be: Quartet Opus 64, No. 3 by Haydn, Quartet Opus 59, No. 3 by Beethoven, subtitled Rasmussen, and Quartet, Opus 10, by Claude Debussy. This selection will afford listeners the comparison between three distinct schools of composition for this type of instrumental combination, Haydn representing the classical or formal structure characteristic of his time, the Beethoven work displaying what was in the day of its composition a hitherto undreamed of scope and breadth in the use of the four stringed instruments. The Debussy selection has the characteristic stamp of impressionism well known in the work of its composer as well as many unusual harmonic effects considered radical at the time of its first appearance.

A reception honoring the artists will be held at the Carmel Art Gallery on north Dolores Street, half an hour after the concert, for all members of the audience. The Carmel Art Association will be co-host with the association.

Highlands Zoning Board Asks Co. To Investigate Inn

At the recent meeting of Carmel Highlands Advisory Zoning Board, several complaints were received from Highlands property owners that guest houses and rooms were being rented to both individuals and to overflow guests of Highlands Inn, in violation of the County Zoning Ordinance. Before the Board were also a number of specific, written complaints, mentioning names and places. It was evident that home-owners of the district desired that Highlands be kept residential in character, believing that present infringements upon the ordinance would rapidly spread, unless checked.

It was decided to get in touch with the known violators, and to request the aid of the Monterey County Zoning Commission. By calling attention to a number of particular violations, it was hoped that formal action would be unnecessary.

Among the restrictions governing Carmel Highlands district is one permitting one residence plus one "non-commercial" guest house on an area not less than one acre. This clause, of course, is not retroactive, and does not affect the construction of buildings erected before 1930—except that no residence, whenever built, is permitted to rent rooms. And guest houses, whenever built, remain in the

The usual social gathering will follow the program.

INFLUENCES

How many of the reading public, who dip occasionally into poetry, enjoy it and pass on, are aware that much that is excellent in American verse owes its existence to the labors of one man, who contrived to give American poetry a hearing?

Glenn Clairmonte in the Have You Read Column of the Feature Page has told the story of Dr. William Stanley Braithwaite, poet who became editor and publisher so that other poets might have the greatest of all inspiration to the creative artist, an audience.

Keep Our Own Beach And Urge Acquisition Of Others, Says City Clerk

"I feel very strongly that we should all get behind a program of completing beach acquisitions before the rising land values make acquisition more costly, but I do not believe that Carmel Beach should be put up as matching funds to accomplish any part of this program," Peter Mawdsley told the Pine Cone this week on his return from the Convention of Shoreline Planning Association held at Santa Cruz last Friday and Saturday.

He attended the convention as an official delegate from Carmel, holding a watching brief for the safeguarding of Carmel's beach against state control and development.

Carmel Martin, chairman of the Monterey County Planning Commission, has long advocated Carmel's putting up its beach as matching funds for the acquisition of the Carmel River Mouth and the shore line to Point Lobos.

The city council several years ago rejected the plan, but the pressure has been renewed since the recent meeting sponsored by the Audubon Society and the Lobos League to speed up acquisition of the two local shore areas.

Nevertheless, Mawdsley will recommend that the council urge the completing of beach acquisitions in the county by other means, when he gives his report to the council at the regular meeting November 5.

"Everything possible should be done to keep the general public aware of this urgency (for immediate acquisition). Even for preservation alone, regardless of development, as is the case with our own beach, it is desirable to secure public ownership."

He is vigorously opposed to the trend he noted at the Santa Cruz Convention for developing beach areas already acquired before acquiring additional shore line areas.

"Development rather than acquisition showed up early on the floor of the convention," he told the Pine Cone, "first in a talk by Senator Judah of Santa Cruz, and then in a telegram from Geoffrey Morgan, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Association, who was absent through illness, and in the remarks of the incumbent president, Neil Cunningham of San Francisco.

"The implication of the cessation of acquisition activities was so startling to me that after exchanging views with members at the Friday night banquet I raised the question as a topic for discussion at the Saturday morning session. I presented the view that the prime policy of the Association should be acquisition and (Continued on Page Four)

Kergan Calls Election For Carmel Unincorp.

Wesley Kergan has called a general meeting of Carmel Unincorporated for Monday, November 10, 4:00 p.m. at All Saints' Church for the purpose of electing officers.

Kergan, who has moved within the city limits, will offer his resignation as president.

Members of the organization, which has been inactive for over a year, have expressed the desire again to hold regular meetings in view of their interest in promoting action toward acquisition of the Carmel River Mouth as a State Park and national preserve.

Denny Roper Is Another Carmelite Who Uses Retirement For Further Study And Scientific Research

Last Saturday the flag was flying over the Scenic Drive home of Mr. and Mrs. Denney Warren Roper, because it was Mr. Roper's 78th birthday and his family and friends had gathered to enjoy angel food cake and ice cream. Mr. Roper is the tall round-headed individual with the humorous eyes and the full speculative lips, who walks down Dolores Street after luncheon every day with a shopping bag dangling from one hand.

He is alert to all his friends and never misses an opportunity to tell a pointed story about the vagaries of human experience, but at the same time, because of his scientific mind, he is obviously seeing more in an ordinary situation than the rest of us can recognize.

When Mr. Roper left Cornell University in 1893 he was a mining engineer. With General Electric Company, Niagara Falls Power Company, Missouri Edison Electric Company, and Commonwealth Edison Company, he was one of the founders of the age of technology which has brought physical comfort to us all. In 1935, he retired and travelled around the country in search of the perfect place to spend the rest of his days—with the result that he bought a home in Carmel. He calls it Quisiana (one who heals himself) and is supposedly relaxing after all his arduous years.

But to Mr. Roper his years in harness have been preparatory. With his phenomenal memory and his strong connections throughout the world of electrical engineers, plus his avid study of current scientific reports and papers and publications, he is continuing his research into the subject of cable insulation which he began earlier at Harvard and Johns Hopkins Universities. He is in constant correspondence with the research laboratories in the east and middle west, is continually drawing up charts to show how past research may be used to advance human knowledge, is daily directing new experiments toward the discovery of new alloys. He states that there will be nothing to report on his present project for at least two years, and he is ready to spend far longer than that on tests of his considered theories. —G. C.

Sporting NOTES

PENINSULA FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

SATURDAY, October 25—Coast Union (Cambria), at Carmel, 2 p.m.;
Pacific Grove vs. Salinas JV at Salinas, 8 p.m.;
Hollister at Monterey, 6:30 p.m.

COAST HIGH SCHOOL VS. PADRE VARSITY

Something new in the line of football competition will be presented to Carmel fans tomorrow afternoon, when the Coast Union High School of Cambria tangles with the Carmel Padres at 2 o'clock. This will be the first game in which Carmel will meet an opponent which has a student body less numerous than the Padres. Coast is a school with a small student body and a lot of spirit and fight. Their football team boasts two linemen who tip the beams over 200 pounds and three backs over 185 in heft. One of the behemoth linemen will plug up a guard position with 245 pounds of bone and muscle. The light Padres are used to being outweighed in all their grid encounters and will rely on their swiftness and agility to get around the beef.

Starting for the Red and Grey will be: Owen Greenan and Dick Weer at the flanks; Floyd Adams and Newt Goodrich in the tackle slots; Rod Dewar and Bill Hodgson at guards; Art Harber, player of the week against San Jose, at center; Nelson Byers, Dick Garguilo, Lew McCreery, and Tom Handley in the backfield. Sure to see lots of action are: Bill Russell, Mike Monahan, Dick Sumner, Les Bracisco, Bill Johnson, John Blinks, Elton Clark, Basil Allaire, Tom Corley, Frank Timmins, Curtis Gorham, Paul Warner, Jim Hare, Bob Barry and Murrey Wight.

The Coast band and drill team will perform for the spectators during the halftime intermission. Game time, 2 o'clock at Bardarson Field, Carmel High School.

CARMEL GRIDDERS UPSET SAN JOSE TECH, 44 TO 0

Putting on an exhibition of downfield blocking which would do justice to a good college eleven, the Carmel High School football squad cut down the highly-touted San Jose Tech team and sent their scat backs on long romps into touchdown territory. In the first quarter of the game, in which Carmel was the underdog, Dick Garguilo broke loose for touchdown runs of 17, 40, and 70 yards. Vicious blocking by all the Carmel lads contributed to the scoring thrusts. After a letdown in the second quarter, in which the Padres stuttered, spluttered, and fizzled, the Red and Grey came back with a second half display of blocking, tackling and running which completely overwhelmed the Mechanics. Paul Warner and Nelson Byers, at the helm of the T, sent Handley, Barry, Wight, and McCreery on touchdown jaunts into the San Jose end zone. When the backs weren't rambling on the ground, Jim Hare was passing to Owen Greenan over the Tech secondary.

The San Jose eleven put on several sustained drives which threatened to land in payoff territory, but the hard charging Padre linemen rose up to hold the visitors when the chips were down. Rod Dewar, Art Harber, and Bill Hodgson did yeoman work in halting the Tech marches. Several muffs of well directed passes proved costly to the San Jose cause when they took to the air in a valiant effort to equalize the contest. The Carmel pass defense was guilty of letting Tech receivers get behind them and this could have evened the ball game if the Blue and Gold receivers could have held onto the ball. The Padre pass defense will have to improve 200 percent if they hope to stop the vaunted King City aerial barrage on November 1st.

With a substantial lead to work on, the Padre reserves took over in the final quarter and continued the fine display of blocking which was exhibited by the starters in the first quarter.

WATSONVILLE JR. VARSITY BEATS CARMEL LIMITEDS

Beaten, outplayed, but never outfought, the Carmel limited football aggregation went down to a 12 to 6 defeat at the hands of the Wildcat Junior-Varsity, last Friday night at Watsonville. The local grididers found themselves on the short end of a 12-0 score in the first 5 minutes of the game, but they rallied strongly after this early lapse and were outplaying the apple pickers at the end of the contest. Early game nervousness has been a nemesis of the Limiteds in all their games this year, and if they can overcome this mistake they will come out on the long end of the rest of their games.

Walt Frey, Murrey Wight, and Keith McKenzie provided the offensive fireworks in the Padre backfield, with Wight scoring the Carmel touchdown. Murrey played all the backfield positions for the Limiteds and handled the chores like a good jack-of-all-trades. The line play of Pierre Boutet, Jim Harget, Bernie Adams, and Ernie Barker, was largely instrumental in holding the Wildcats scoreless in the second half.

CARMEL ALL-STARS TO PLAY CRUISER COLUMBUS CAGERS

A sterling band of hardware artists has been organized for next Monday night's basketball encounter at the Carmel High School Gym with the classy quintet from the Columbus. The sailors are touted to have one of the best basketball squads in the fleet and the locals will have to go all out to hold them in check. Game time will be 8 o'clock and the public is invited. Carmel will be represented by such good basketball artists as Dick Uzzell, Del Wermuth, Milt Thompson, Russ Bohlke, Richard Mulholland, Bob Weer, Lee Winslow, and Don Gibbs. The basketball game has been arranged as part of an entertainment program for the personnel from Uncle Sam's fighting ships.

STILL TIME TO SIGN UP FOR PINE CONE HARDBALL TEAM

Baseball has become so popular in Carmel that it looks as if the village is going to be capable of providing two hardball teams in the coming Peninsula Winter League. The local Legion fielded an aggregation last season and plans to have another this year. Cliff Cook is scouting around for players for a Carmel Pine Cone Team and all interested in playing are asked to show up at the high school practice field this Sunday morning at 10.

Other teams participating in the fast league will be Seaside, Monterey, Salinas Junior College, and Pacific Grove. Salinas Junior College won the pennant last year and will be favored to repeat their fine performance of last season. They are well provided with classy baseball players and have a year of organized experience to their credit. The playing personnel of the Carmel clubs has not, as yet, been selected and sifted, but this will be accomplished after another Sunday's workout. There are plenty of Carmel men who have talent for baseball and two good clubs will be assured.

SKYWAY FOR POWER

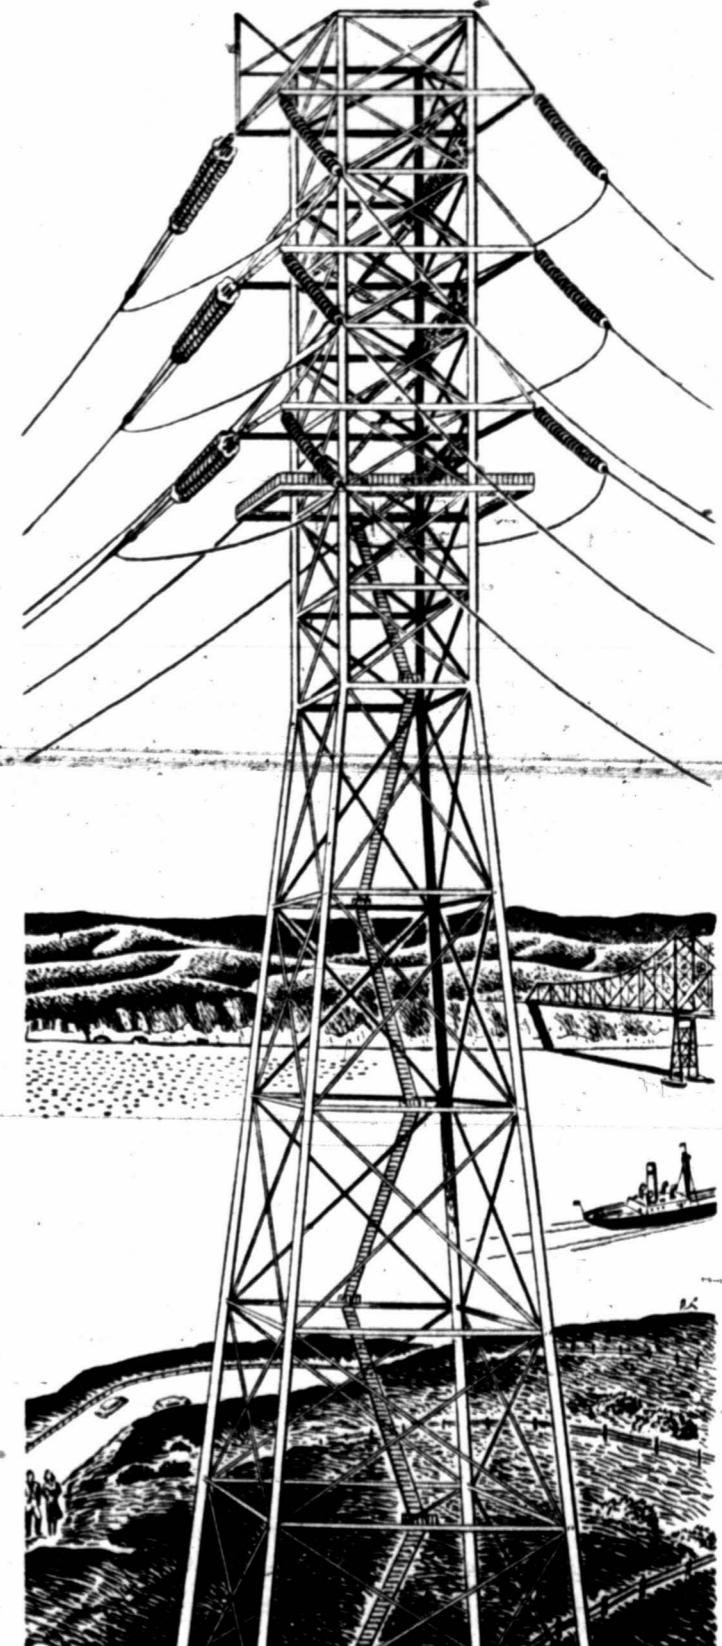

New 4804 Foot Carquinez Crossing

It has already become a sightseer's attraction, our spectacular Carquinez Strait power line crossing.

Here on the hills above the bridge, men are pushing steel skyward for the 383 foot towers which will carry the transmission line cables. The six great cables will swing 4804.5 feet in an unbroken span across the Strait—a distance more than 600 feet greater than the span of the Golden Gate Bridge.

This new skyway for power is a connecting link in the 220,000-volt transmission line from Vaca-Dixon substation in Solano County to the new Moraga substation in Contra Costa County. The project is scheduled for completion in November, 1947.

The Carquinez Crossing is part of the all-out effort of the company to insure power output far ahead of future needs in this area. It is part of an expansion program which will add approximately 1,000,000 horsepower to the Company's generating capacity by the end of 1951, when the total will be more than 3,500,000 horsepower.

George Cain Takes Final Pictures Of Mission For Downie

George Cain, the photographer, spent last weekend in San Luis Obispo, as the guest of Harry Downie, taking the last photographs of Mission San Luis Obispo before the reconstruction under Mr. Downie is begun. Mr. Downie, George reports, has already carved the altar and altar rail of redwood and has antiqued them to resemble the original parts of the Mission founded in 1772.

Mr. Downie is in sole charge of spending a half million dollars donated by William Randolph Hearst for the restoration of the California Missions.

William Tocher

William John Tocher, 52, died October 20 of a heart ailment after an illness of several weeks in a Berkeley hospital. He was a native of Fall River Mill, California, and had been an appraiser for the Bank of America for 18 years.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Helen Tocher, until recently owner of The Covered Wagon on Dolores Street, and by three sons, William John Tocher, Jr., Donald Tocher and Richard Tocher.

Services were held yesterday at 2:00 o'clock in the Chapel of Albert Brown Undertaking Company on Piedmont Avenue, Oakland, and interment took place at Mountain View Cemetery in Oakland.

LOW Flier REPRIMANDED

Beverly Blanks was piloting a plane too close to the ceiling of Dolores Street at 10th when members of the Carmel Police Department sighted him. He was called in and reprimanded on the assumption that he had been flying only 900 feet above the ground, but he claimed he had kept at an altitude of 1150 feet. He was excused when he assured the police that he would be careful not to infringe the protective ordinance in the future.

Lacking Passport Seal Departs For Other Silver Strands

When a seal, who had evidently heard rumors of the popularity of Carmel, took steps last Friday afternoon to make a tour of the town, he got only as far as the tide line along the white sands, when he met with a semi-circle of villagers, solicitous for his welfare. Men and women aimed cameras at him and discussed what must be his reason for sitting tall and staring inquisitively. Obviously waiting for them to disperse so that he might proceed up Eighth Street, the seal lay down now and then a breaker sent its tentacles along his flippers. But when someone sent for a police escort and officers arrived, the seal tried to frisk his own pockets in search of a passport. Failing to find one he considered it the better part of valor to postpone his visit to Carmel until the population should decrease, so he shuffled into the curving deep once more.

DR. WESTON PHOTO CLASS SPEAKER

Dr. Ralph Weston will begin a series of lectures on the fundamentals of photography, next Thursday, October 30, before Mrs. Leota Tucker's class in the music room of Sunset School, at 7:30 p.m. Students are requested to bring their own cameras so that they may have help in their specific problems. The use of developing solutions and their components will be taught, and practical methods of gaining the desired photographic effect discussed. This regular Thursday lecture is a new feature of the Carmel Adult School program.

Prof. Francis Lloyd

Professor Francis Lloyd, 79, died in Carmel last Friday morning, after having been a resident of Carmel since 1911, when he first came here as plant physiologist for the Carnegie laboratory. He grew to be dearly loved as a student of the earth and all growing things, and during his retirement in Carmel he published important findings on carnivorous plants and native spiders. He kept a record of the rainfall for the Pine Cone for many years and was always the first to report on the pollen of the pine trees when the season for that delicate irritant had arrived. He took part in many of Carmel's civic affairs, especially in productions given at the Forest Theatre. Two of the performances in which he appeared were Tusitala, the Robert Louis Stevenson pageant, in which he enacted the role of Father Damien, and Fire, by Mary Austin.

Professor Lloyd had been born in England of Welsh parentage but had spent his early university days at Lafayette University and graduated from Princeton in 1891. Throughout his life he was a student, following courses in Munich and Bonn at the turn of the century, and winning many honors. He was given an honorary doctorate at the University of Wales in 1933 and another at the Masaryk University in Czechoslovakia in 1938, and was a member of a score of scholarly societies. He was the author of four scientific books and many articles for scientific journals, and was head of the Botany Department of McGill University from 1912 until his retirement in 1934.

Professor Lloyd was one of the first students of guayule rubber, starting researches in 1906 at the Carnegie laboratory at Tucson, Arizona, and following through with expeditions to Mexico, Alaska, British West Indies, Java, Sumatra, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand. As a result, he was able to make important contributions to the guayule project in Salinas. The morning after his death telegrams of condolence from many parts of the world reached his grieving family.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Elizabeth Lloyd, and a son, Frank Lloyd, both of Carmel, and by a son, Dr. David Lloyd of the Rockefeller Institute, New York. Private services were held for him last Friday afternoon at the Mission Mortuary, prior to cremation of the remains. Inurnment took place at the Salinas Columbarium.

Keep Our Beach And Urge Acquisition Of Others Says City Clerk

(Continued from Page One) not development, that there should be no diminishing of our activities in the field of acquisition until we had acquired every last beach that should be acquired for the use of the people and posterity. I received some support in this view, notably from a representative from Marin County who pointed out that a development policy might be all right, for those counties which have already acquired their beaches, but if pursued to the exclusion of our acquisition activities, would be unfair to those who have not yet made their acquisitions.

The incumbent president, the executive vice president and the other directors, took the floor in defense of the change of policy, explaining that the attitude of the Governor and State Legislature was for putting to use the beaches already acquired before asking for additional appropriations for acquisitions.

Also attending the convention from Monterey County were Carmel Martin, who presented Monterey County's program, Charles Holm and Chas. De Mars.

500 Turn Out For Audubon Screen Tour

Alexander Sprunt, Jr., a lean South Carolinian who gives the impression of being all sinew, opened the Audubon Screen Tour Wednesday evening at Sunset Auditorium with an illustrated lecture entitled Our Living Earth. His address followed closely the colored motion pictures filmed by William D. Storer, showing the interrelation of soil development, plant, insect, bird and mammal life, the perfect balance of which provides good crops for human consumption. Mr. Sprunt spoke with the clarity of a scholar who has full background for each remark he makes, and the audience of nearly five hundred came out of the spell at the close of the hour greatly enriched.

The second event of the Audubon Screen Tour will occur November 20 when Mrs. Laurel Reynolds will speak on Fun with Birds. Those who bought single tickets for Wednesday evening may turn in their stubs toward the purchase of season tickets if they wish, at either of the Abinante Music Stores.

Girl Scout News

Sunday, November 2, is an important day for all Monterey Peninsula Girl Scouts, as that is the day of the Girl Scout Circus. It is to be held at the Monterey Fairgrounds from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m., and all friends and relatives of the Girl Scouts are cordially invited to attend. The girls have been hard at work making many interesting gift items which will be sold at booths, along with tasty food for a picnic lunch. In the afternoon, each troop is to present a short period of entertainment. The purpose of this circus is to raise money for the Girl Scout World Friendship Fund, also to help each troop earn money so that they may carry out their many activities.

Troop 27 has elected officers as follows: president, Renee Vallon; vice-president, Susan Hanney; secretary, Jean Fratessa; treasurer, Patsy Ricketts.

KIDDY SHOP FIRE

Commander and Mrs. Joseph Ouellet, who own the Carmel Kiddie Shop, on Ocean Avenue west of Dolores, sustained the loss of an upholstered settee Tuesday evening shortly after eight o'clock, when a cigarette or some such burning article was flung carelessly into the garden behind the shop. A disinterested observer noticed the smoke and sent in a fire alarm, and 14 volunteer firemen appeared before the flames had eaten through the wall. The Fire Department used its new high pressure fog pump for the first time and extinguished the flames readily, but for additional safety, they had laid a line from the Mack engine to the nearest hydrant.

The police got in touch with Commander Ouellet at the Lions Club dinner and informed him of his loss. He and his wife congratulated the volunteers on having saved the shop from further damage, and incidentally congratulated themselves because they had just received their new Christmas stock and a fire inside the building would have been disastrous.

M. DeNeale Morgan

From Chandler Estate

M. De Neale Morgan, the Carmel Art Association and the Harrison Memorial Library were remembered in the will of Sara Elizabeth Chandler, San Francisco, artist, who died in San Francisco, August 14.

Miss Morgan, a life long friend, received a portrait of herself painted by the San Francisco artist; two books go to the Library: Motives of Oriental Art and Bamboo, Cult and Culture, by Miss Katherine M. Ball, authority on Oriental Art, and for many years supervisor of art in the San Francisco schools. To the Carmel Art Association, $250.00.

Miss Chandler, who was 83 at the time of her death, lived in Carmel for many years prior to 1926. Her mother, in 1892 bought the block bounded by Ocean, Mission and Junipero, which Miss Chandler sold to M. J. Murphy in 1925. She was the niece of the Right Reverend John Henry Ducas Wingfield, former Episcopal Missionary Bishop of Northern California, and was a cousin of Thomas Nelson Page, author and ambassador.

San Francisco charities and art groups received the bulk of her estate, which amounted to about $10,000.

Hawaiian Problems Subject Of Lee's Talk To Woman's Club

Although Mr. Clark Lee, veteran Far Eastern correspondent and author, told the Carmel Woman's Club Book Section last Monday afternoon that he had not made a speech in four years and the last one was in Spanish, his audience received a remarkably clear picture of the Island territory which may soon become the forty-ninth State. His subject, Statehood for Hawaii, was more or less academic, said the speaker, as the House of Representatives has already voted in favor of it and it looks as if the Senate will do the same thing next year.

In a book soon to be published, They Left Her a Bible, Mr. Lee tells the story of the last native monarch, Queen Liliuokalani, and relates the history of Hawaii based on extended research. Using excerpts from the book Mr. Lee presented some facts concerning the outwardly peaceful invasion and adoption of the Islands by missionaries, sugar planters, shippers and others. Beginning with the arrival of British Captain James Cook and his motley crew in 1778, it is a sorry tale of decimation of the Polynesian native population by white man's diseases and vices, loss of most of their land and relinquishment under pressure of control of their government.

A proud and spirited people whose traditions are at least five thousand years old and whose history probably dates back three or four times that far, the Hawaiians refused menial labor for the white man on sugar plantations and elsewhere. Orientals, at first Chinese and then Japanese in large numbers, were brought in until today, said Mr. Lee, it is probable that the Japanese could control the vote.

For this reason and others, the desirability of granting statehood to Hawaii is questioned by many. Mr. Lee praised the Japanese in the Islands for their loyalty and bravery during the recent war, but said the question is frequently asked whether under statehood the Americans and Japanese ancestry might vote as a unit and control a majority of state and federal affairs.

In the discussion period following Mr. Lee's excellent talk, it was brought out that although the Japanese in Hawaii have no political connection whatever with Japan, there is little assimilation with other races in the Islands.

MENZIES RETURN

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Menzies of Hatton Road have just returned from a trip through the Northwest. They first went up the Redwood Highway to Portland and Seattle, on to Pendleton, Oregon, and up into the fabulous John Day Country. They stopped at Lake View where there is the only steady hot water geyser in the world, visited at Reno, and came on home by way of Yosemite. They were accompanied by Claud Rumsey, Mrs. Menzies' brother.

Therese Whiteside Exhibits Slides To Photochrome Club

Therese Whiteside journeyed to San Francisco last week to exhibit a slide collection to the Photochrome Club of that city. This particular collection was a group of 52 Nature slides selected as the best submitted to the Buffalo Museum of Science salon last spring. Mrs. Whiteside's contribution to the traveling collection was a color photograph of the Lone Cypress at Midway Point taken from below when the sunset gave the whole picture a golden tinge.

Last week Mrs. Whiteside received notice that her color photograph entitled Rockhound had won the fifth prize in the September international competition of the Photographic Society of America.

Mrs. B. J. Johnson
Discusses Club's
Bazaar-Luncheon Plans

At the meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club Monday, the club president, Mrs. Benjamin G. Johnson, spoke briefly about the bazaar and luncheon to be held at the Girl Scout House on the morning of Monday, November 3, preceding the General Meeting at the Carmel Theater at 2 p.m. A number of sewing groups have met at members' houses, but there is need for as much help as possible and each Club member is asked to donate one article for sale. The Girl Scout House will be open on Sunday, November 2, and articles may be left there. The lunch, which it is said will be a $2.00 value for $1.00, will be served at two sittings, one from eleven-thirty to twelve-thirty and the other twelve-thirty to one-thirty. Reservations must be made with Mrs. Anne Knox, Telephone 302-W.

Mrs. Johnson also spoke concerning the forthcoming Club Bridge Tournament for men and women, to be held on five consecutive Monday evenings at the Girl Scout House, beginning Monday, October 27, at 7:30 p.m. Duplicate bridge will be played but reservations may also be made for contract foursomes. The fee for the five evenings is $3.75 per person. All funds from the bridge tournament, the bazaar and luncheon, and other special events are applied to the Club's Building Fund. Reservations for the Bridge Tournament may be made with Mrs. Jack Abernethy, Telephone 1105.

Mrs. Flora Hartwell announced that cut flowers and boutonnieres will be on sale at the bazaar and asked for donations of all kinds of bloom, also vases to serve as containers. These should be brought to the Scout House on Sunday, November 2.

Tea following the meeting was served by Mrs. J. O. Handley and Mrs. Raymond G. Smith, with Mrs. A. B. Pierce and Mrs. Frank Smith pouring. Floral decorations were arranged by Mrs. F. E. Naftzger, chairman of the Club's Garden Section.

Henry Meade Williams
To Address Lit. Class

Henry Meade Williams will meet with Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte's class in current literature next Tuesday, October 28, at 7:30 p.m. He is the novelist and short story writer whose special work for the OWI during the war appeared in some of his Collier's tales, such as Scorched Earth and Sailor Come Home. He was raised in the aura of literature, being the son of Jesse Lynch Williams, the Pulitzer Prize playwright, and having known Carmel with its traditions all his life.

There is some possibility that his wife, Mona Williams, also a well published story writer, will appear to give something of a tandem performance, but she may prefer to take a less conspicuous position around the conference table.

Visitors are invited to join these students of current literature in Room 11 of Sunset School at 7:30 every Tuesday, as all attendants are guests of the Carmel Adult School.

TALKS ON PEACE

Zenas Potter's talk on the way to international peace was so well received at the Plymouth Congregational Church in San Francisco that he has been asked to repeat the talk, or allow it to be given by representatives, in all the congregational churches in northern California.

Hi Chatter

By PEGGY RIKER

This week saw the last poor innocent male lassoed and branded for the big Sadie Hawkins Dance this Friday night. From the looks of things this should be one of the largest dances of the season, and definitely the most fun. If it is anything like last year's success the girls may show up leading the boys firmly at the end of a rope and wearing anything from sawed-off jeans to peasant skirts. With everything left strictly to the girls, including corsages, bills, and transportation, the boys can just sit back and enjoy themselves.

Tomorrow morning ten girls will leave as delegates, under the sponsorship of Miss Wright and Miss Knoche, for the Coast Counties Girls' League Conference at the Salinas Union High School. The main conference theme is Everyday Living with two round table discussions to be held in the morning: Leave It to the Girls, led by Donna Bentley of San Luis Obispo High, and Friendship, led by Susan Moss of Pacific Grove. Delegates and sponsors will be entertained at a luncheon in the high school cafeteria, and there will be a special speaker. Those representing Carmel High School are: Jan Martin, Georgann Bell, Barbara Berg, Susan McCloud, Janice Hatton, Jennifer Lloyd, Kathie von Meier, Ann Fratessa, Joan Harrington, and Beverly Dowgiallo. We are counting on these delegates to bring back some helpful suggestions for the coming year.

This Saturday Carmel's Bardarson Field will be the scene of a non-league game with the Coast High School. Although they have an enrollment of only 85 students, they are bringing a band and a drill team along with their football team. This shows real school spirit, so let's fill Carmel's bleachers with red and gray fans.

The first round of the Girls' Intramural Basketball Championship drew to a close Monday with the Seniors securely in the lead. The final round will begin next week. It promises to be one of the hardest seasons we have seen so far.

Wednesday noon, last week, the California Scholarship Society, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Elise de Celles Beaton, held its first meeting of the year to elect new officers. They are: Rod Dewar, president; Ginger Klein, vice president; and Peggy Riker, secretary. The twenty-eight students who have maintained a high scholastic average, at least three A's and a B, during the last semester and are eligible for the club are: Basil Allaire, Nancy Anderson, Bob Barry, Paul Baxter, John Blinks, Margaret Boice, Hillary Carlson, "Biz" Carr, Joan Daniels, Rod Dewar, Ann Fratessa, Marjory Glennon, Louise Harber, Joan Harrington, Janice Hatton, Laurel del Hildebrand, Caryl Jane Hill, "Ginger" Klein, June Kocher, Peter Krupocki, Peter Lyon, Christine Malvido, William Marquardt, Susan Moore, Peggy Riker, Mat Schmutz, Benita Updike, Kathie von Meier, and Nancy Page.

In the past few weeks Carmel High, under the sponsorship of the Leaders' Club, has conducted a clothes drive for the benefit of the Quaker Relief Organization. All clothes suitable for girls between the ages of six and fourteen, however, are being sent to the Delphine Gay Girls' School in France. Le Cercle Francais, under the able direction of Mrs. Beaton, has been corresponding with students from this school for several years. From the graphic descriptions of conditions there and from reports from the director, Madame P. Lozouet, the French Club determined to help them, and is not only sending these much-needed boxes of clothing, but packages of food as well. The school lies outside Rouen, in a poor manufacturing town, where handicaps, such as lack of food, clothing, heat, a prevalence of tuberculosis in recent medical examinations, and generally poor health conditions, have not lessened these students' desire to learn. Carmel students have sent their good wishes for the future along with these packages and a promise of more to come.

Sam's a Matrimony Expert

Sam Abernathy never intended to be a matrimony expert, but he hit the nail on the head the other day when he said:

"What marriage really needs is more open minds and a lot fewer open mouths."

Sam may not think much of his missus' choice of hats or her habit of serving watercress and cream cheese salad. But he keeps his mouth shut (I mean, he just uses it to eat the salad). And the missus never criticizes Sam's affection for that worn-out chair before the fire,

SUNSET SCHOOL NOTES

Mr. James Blee's, Seventh Grade.

As you know, last week was Fire Prevention Week. Mrs. Sylvia Jordan's and Mr. James Blee's seventh grade gave a play called Junior's Dream. You know, a play isn't a play unless you have a villain. Well, Junior's Dream has 13 villains. The object of the play was to teach a lesson about how to be careful with fire.

Junior was played by Jo Hudson. The 13 villains were played by Bill Gorham, Myrna Sutton, Arthur Page, Renee Bedau, Penny Bestor, Tom McGlynn, Mike Ricketts, Susan Johnston, Mary Alice Graves, and Marsha Laird. The ordinary people were Lynn Campbell and Carolyn Fratessa. The play ends by Lynn dramatically stamping her foot and chasing the villains out. —Mary Adams.

Last Friday afternoon at 1:05 we saw a movie on the Pan American Highway. It showed what cities the highway went through and something about the people in each country. The movie showed how the people dressed and what their main products were. Everyone enjoyed it. —Pat Chedester.

On Tuesday, October 7, Mr. Callery, our shop teacher, showed us a movie about tools. The main character was Primitive Pete. He abused various tools. Among them was the hammer, saw, screw driver, wrench, and pliers. It was entertainment and also taught us a lesson. —Carole Byers.

The seventh grade is studying about all the plants and animals that surround us. We are now learning about the animals and insects. About all of the children brought killing jars which were used for killing their insects. All of the insects that we catch we put into the killing jar and they die by smelling poisonous gas. After they are dead, we take them out and pin them in the cigar boxes that we got from the stores around town. We do that with all the insects we catch and after a while we have a nice collection.

For the animals, some of the children brought worms, snails, frogs, and snakes into the room to keep and feed. It is very interesting to watch them.

Each child in the room has chosen a topic and before November 1st, they are to write a composition on it. We are all getting books at the library and at school to read up on our topics. Here are a few of the topics we have chosen: mosquitos, termites, moths, spiders, crickets, monarch butterflies, honey bees, and ants. I think that everybody should have a period on this subject. It is lots of fun. —Karen von Meier.

Mrs. Virginia Nye's, Third Grade.

In the summer, almost every morning, I go over to the Pacific Grove beach. I go out fishing a lot. I catch a lot of fish.

—Charles Dawson.

We are studying about China. We are reading about Lin Foo and Lin Ching. I brought some Chinese money to school. —Tweed Champe.

We are having a funny book drive for the soldiers in the hospital at Fort Ord. —Carol Lewis.

The Brownies are going to be in a circus and make things for the circus. We are going to make dolls and sing and have lots of fun.

—Mary Anne Knox.

This summer I went fishing with Charles in Pacific Grove. We caught twenty rock cod. His father caught fifty rock cod.

—James Bannerman.

I went to a picture show. It was a fish picture. I saw fishermen. I saw them can the fish.

—Donald Smith.

When I went to San Francisco I went on a trolley car. It went bumpy, bump, bump. It was fun though. You can go down to China town on it. —Bruce Newell.

How desert winds help speed your voice across country

Above the desert floor we sometimes use wind-driven generators to supply power for long distance amplifying stations miles away from electric lines. When the wind dies, gasoline motors take over to charge the batteries at these repeater stations that give a "boost" to your voice as it journeys with the speed of light across the country.

"Here is your party" is the phrase our long distance operators are using more often these days. For calls East are going through faster now. To give complete service to the many new telephones we're adding, we must build more "speech highways"—all parts of the telephone system must grow.

It takes new Working Dollars . . . millions of them . . . to build buildings and buy equipment needed to meet the demand for more service. They do not come from telephone bills, but from people who put their savings into the business. And to get new working dollars we must sell our services at fair prices which allow us to pay reasonably for the use of their savings.

Carmel Story...

CHAPTER VII MEMORY CORNER

BY DAISY BOSTICK

Last week we told you a part of the story about the corner of many memories—where the Goold Building now stands. The old Hotel Carmel that had seen the little village grow from a handful of people, that had been a hotel, a stage office, a lodging house, a dairy, a real estate office—sometimes even a social center of sorts—had finally been destroyed by fire, and the land upon which the building had stood entered upon a new life.

The watering trough with its picturesque canopy was torn down and replaced with the present Soldiers' Memorial which was designed and executed by the noted architect Charles Sumner Greene.

Time passed and Hugh Comstock built a model home at the corner and many curious and interested sight-seers tramped through it. This house was finally moved up to the Eighty-acre tract, and is now the very pleasant home of a Carmel resident.

We have been talking about old Hotel Carmel but it didn't extend clear back to Sixth and we have paid no attention to the very interesting things which happened to the rear part of the lot. A stranger came into town, built a cute little office on the vacant space back of the hotel and hung out his shingle announcing that he was a builder and architect. He gave up and left after a short time and sold his office to a Mrs. Stone who owned a lot in the Eighty Acres. She had a concrete foundation built on her lot, the office was loaded on a truck, hauled up to its new home and set down upon it. House and foundation fitted perfectly. Mrs. Stone added a lean-to for a tiny kitchen and bath, installed an electric plate and water heater. As this was about the first electric equipment to be used in Carmel, it was known for years as The Electric House. It has gone through many changes since that time and now bears the name of the Postage Stamp.

In the early days of Charley Goold's ownership and after the removal of the real estate office described above, a rustic building which was located on Ocean Avenue near San Carlos was moved over to the Goold property at Sixth, and it has always been used as a restaurant. Various Carmel people took a fling at it. Among them were Mrs. Lottie Freitas, Paul Mercurio, Thomas Edler. Finally it was leased to Steve Patterson, a man experienced in the restaurant business. He prospered, built up a fine trade and made many friends who praised and patronized Steve's Chop House.

The brothers Hestwood were long on art and short on funds. It is said that their credit with the proprietor was materially increased by the murals which they painted on the walls, representing the Seven Arts. When Mrs. Goold decided to build a new modern building on the combined site of the restaurant and the hotel she offered the building to Steve Patterson if he would move it away. Nothing loath, he bought a lot on the corner of Sixth and Lincoln and the eating place took up its march once more to a new location. Steve added to it and made many improvements but left the Hestwood murals on the walls where they can still be seen. Not long ago Steve sold his business and retired to his ranch down the coast.

Memories of the old days of hotel and restaurant still linger with us. Memories of Frank Powers, J. F. Devendorf, Charles Goold, Agnes Signor—those and many other of the villagers who played a large part in shaping the pioneer life of Carmel. But new faces are gradually crowding out the old memories—the Doctors, the Dentists, the real estate operator, the manager and employees of the market, and Mary Goold among the flowers on her roof garden.

THESE ARE NOT

*There is no Present; always the phantom Now
Slips from our futile grasp, a thing of air.
Nowhere is the land of its abiding;
Aeons burn out the stars — and know it not.
And what of the endless dream we call the Future—
Shifting, unstable, brightening, fading, till
The mind, bewildered, desperate, turns away
To its own abiding twilight — and to peace?
The Past how often desolates the heart
With far, sweet voices singing, "We are gone!"
The wind laments above our thousand graves.*

*O learn, my soul, to gaze with eye serene
Upon the feverish pageant men call Time;
To face untroubled, Future, now, and Then.
Be free from pain and sorrow, stress and change:
The spirit's dwelling is eternity!*

CHARLES BALLARD.

TOWN TREE

*To feed my hunger for a tree
And warm my hands by its green hearth,
I tore a shoot from the high wood
And tamped it long with urban earth.*

*I mixed fine loam and leaf-mold in
The bed I made in my town lot,
That in this alien ground a tree
Might spread its arms and knit and knot*

*Its tendons, as a native, kin
To this hard soil, as if it stood,
Giver of peace and rest and song,
Where it had rooted in a wood.*

*I gave it faith and time and sweat,
And I greened when I saw unfold
The first new leaves and new nodes bulge
For it was one of my household.*

*The sapling broadened and grew tall,
Taller than a town tree should be,
It brushed the roof-tops, claimed the ground
That one time had belonged to me.*

*A townsman should not rape a wood,
A tree is awkward in a town,
It dare not gesture and when tall
In flood, full-made, men cut it down.*

ALEX R. SCHMIDT.

BLUE HYACINTH

*Here in my hand I hold
The mystery of the Universe;
A secret that may well unfold
The riddle of the Adam curse—
A hyacinth bulb with dry brown skin,
Dormant and dull to the eye;
Yet holding a lovely self within,
Of perfume and sapphire sky.*

Have You Read . . . ?

BY GLENN CLAIRMONTE

Among those who read the great poetry being written in this country today not many remember the early beginnings of the national consciousness for poetry. Not many realize the tremendous contribution to American culture which came from William Stanley Braithwaite who was the first to fight for recognition of our own poets. Walt Whitman was the one star on the horizon from the time of Emerson to the day when Dr. Braithwaite launched his extravagant plan to publish an Annual Anthology of Magazine Verse and Year Book of American Poetry, and after that latent talents surged into the daring new expressions which released the pent-up emotion of the whole nation.

For seventeen years Dr. Braithwaite sacrificed his own career as a writer of the most sensitive and erudite tradition, in order to present to the public the work of unknown poets. Magazines made space for poems, and hundreds of previously inarticulate singers came forth with messages to delight the gropingly literate in every big and little city in the country. In 1913, when F. S. Flint was gathering his friends each Thursday night in a Soho restaurant to develop imagism, with the praise of Ezra Pound and the later discovery by Amy Lowell, Dr. Braithwaite had already penetrated the libraries and schools with his anthology, and there were waiting lists of hungry readers in the very districts where, it had been claimed, there was no public for poetry.

Dr. Braithwaite had already sent out announcements of a magazine he meant to publish from Boston, when Harriet Monroe, as she states in her autobiography, decided to follow his idea with a magazine of her own—and to publish hers before he could gather material for his own. She secured financial backing and put forth Poetry—A Magazine of Verse within a few weeks of the beginning of his project, and as a result of her aggressive nature she took the credit that the poet of gentler taste never did receive. Yet he was the first ever to propose a magazine of poetry in this country, and he continued his annual anthology for seventeen consecutive years. He published not for the precious but for the men and women raising families in small towns, coming to his books as thirsty travellers to an oasis.

Many of the poets now known in the history of American literature were first published by Dr. Braithwaite, and it was through him that Edgar Lee Masters' Spoon River poems, Vachel Lindsay's chants, Carl Sandburg's indigenous tribes and many other truly American tapestries were brought to the attention of the thousands who would never have found the small editions which reach only cloistered poets. At Harvard Union one evening in 1916 I was present when Odell Shepard, president of the American Poetry Society, thanked Dr. Braithwaite for "patronizing our little affairs" by his presence. Dr. Braithwaite was self-taught, a handsome mulatto, in the midst of the best culture and most formal education of the age, a valiant pioneer and a gracious prince of letters.

That same evening Edward J. O'Brien was in our party and he was groping for a life work, writing delicate poems that had charm but no vigor, when Dr. Braithwaite made the suggestion that was to bring Edward J. O'Brien to fame as the anthologist of short stories. It was through this suggestion, and Dr. Braithwaite's introductions of Edward to editors and publishers, that Edward brought the American short story to the perfection which placed this country in line for recognition throughout the world not only for its poetry, but for its prose as well.

William Stanley Beaumont Braithwaite was born in Boston in 1878. He was married in 1903 and named his first two daughters after Rossetti and Keats. In 1918 he was given an honorary master's degree at Atlanta University, and the same

Lovely Voice And Personality Of Nadine Connor Charms Audience

By EBEN WHITTLESEY

The Monterey Community Concert series got off to a flying start Monday evening in Pacific Grove with the presentation of Nadine Connor, youthful lyric soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, well known to a large radio audience as well. Miss Connor, sparkling with Irish personality and resplendent in a flame colored dress, charmed her audience with a varied program ranging from Bach to Romberg with something calculated to satisfy every shade of taste.

The program opened with two Handel selections from L'Allegro, the recitative, "Let Me Wander Not Unseen," and the aria, "O Let The Merry Bells Ring Round." These revealed a faultless diction, an expressive treatment, and a graciousness of manner which endured throughout the program. The next selection, "If Thou Thy Heart Wilt Give Me" by Bach, showed the composer in his most touching lyric vein, and disclosed the warmth and fluent clarity of the artist's voice. "Love Has Eyes" by Sir Henry Bishop brought out a lighter mood with much expressiveness.

Three Brahms selections, "Bei dir sind Meine Gehanken," "Wir Wanderten" and "Ver Gebliches Standchen" displayed a beautiful tone and well sustained mood, also dramatizing the occasional humor of this composer.

In "Das Berlasse" by Wolf, in a very different mood, the artist displayed fine tone color, while "Wer Ist" by the same composer had a lifting charm and gay melodic line. The first display of operatic qualities was heard in "Un Bel Di," the aria from Madame Butterfly, which was splendidly handled, with fine dramatic attack. An aria from "The Daughter of the Regiment" by Donizetti given as an encore was well handled, particularly as to high tones.

In the second part of the program the following selections were noteworthy: "Chere Nuit" by Bachelet, for its good shading and mood, "Air de L'Enfant" by Ravel, for charming simplicity, an encore, "Songs My Mother Taught Me" by Dvorak, for the sympathetic treatment of the tender theme. Miss Connor's interpretation of the Jewel Song from Faust was remarkable for very clear diction, and fine dramatic effect, though one is inclined to feel that the song has been much overworked as a concert number. In "Strassesa" by Winter Watts the singer's high notes were particularly lovely. The scheduled program was closed appropriately enough, with "My Parting Gift" by Elinor Remick Warren.

A generous group of encores followed, including "Love Story" by Genevieve Wiley, "Summertime" from Porgy and Bess, "Comin' Through The Rye", and "I'll See You Again" from Bittersweet.

Miss Connor has a warm, rich voice with splendid tone control, a floating easy pianissimo, delicate shading, and a fine dramatic sense. Even more important than the vocal qualities is the warmth and humor of the personality which shows through all her work. Her young accompanist, Galen Lurwick, did a splendid job, providing the kind of support that is always present where it is needed, and never obtrudes itself into the work of the soloist. His two piano solos, Polonaise in C Sharp minor, by Chopin, and Andalusa by De Falla, were well chosen in view of the rest of the program, but struck this writer as being too ambitious for the technique of the pianist.

(Continued from page ten) year he was made Doctor of Literature by Talladega College. Also in that same year he was awarded the Spingarn medal.

In 1904 his first book was published, Lyrics of Life and Love; in 1908, The House of Falling Leaves. In 1916 he published The Poetry Year, in 1919 The Story of the Great War, in 1920 Our Essayists and Critics of Today. In 1926 his best group of poems, Sunday Star, appeared, and it was reprinted two years later. His short stories, Frost on the Green Leaf, appeared in 1928. He edited and compiled many volumes. In 1941 he published The House Under Arcturus, an Autobiography; in 1946, The Testament of Teaching, a Record of Man's Noblest Profession. He retired in 1945 as Professor of Literature at Atlanta University, and he has been making his home in New York since then—polishing, everlasting polishing one of his novels that I saw in manuscript as long ago as 1922.

It is always a pleasure to meet some new friend who mentions that his first enjoyment of poetry came with the discovery of Braithwaite's anthology on library shelves, always a joy to meet scholars who took their impetus from Dr. Braithwaite in their youth. At one time every poet who used the English language had sent Dr. Braithwaite an autographed copy of his first volume, and the full collection is now in possession of Harvard Library, not only proof of the resurgence of poetry in American life, but also a tribute to the dean of poets, that man whose voice for reading poetry inspired a whole generation with its innate music.

With Nancy Lofton

With the scent of fresh hay and the texture of papershell taffeta, great bundles of tapa cloths have come to THE HANDICRAFTS FROM THE SOUTH SEAS SHOP in the Golden Bough Court. Made from paper mulberry or paper hibiscus bark and printed and decorated with native dyes, these cloths are durable and beautiful. The designs are easy to live with and the cloths have many uses. You might use them cut to size as window shades in an uncurtained room or as table covering, wall hangings or wall paper. The tapa cloths cost from 25 to 40 cents a square foot and come in many sizes, up to the size of a large room. Incidentally, THE HANDICRAFTS FROM THE SOUTH SEAS SHOP can create a beautiful room for you, with decor completely and authentically from the Islands of the South Seas.

Squares of fine challis in soft pink and blue and white may be purchased in THE STOCKING SHOP in the Golden Bough Court and then tied gently under your baby's chin for a warm and bewitching effect. Other scarves for other purposes in THE STOCKING SHOP include a beautiful scarf of the finest silk made, in other words, a Liberty Silk scarf, squares of finest Swiss voile with a Paisley design, rayon flowered scarves, and for only $1.50, scarves in fringed homespun, in good, clear colors.

Now a fricassee hen is a great delicacy. Take one of the fricassee hens which you may have for .55 a pound from MAC'S POULTRY SHOP on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth, and with care and time and a little tarragon, paprika or basil, you will have a dish that is most pleasant to eat. And if there is any of your fricassee hen left over, which is doubtful in the case of a preparation so delectable, you'll discover that chicken so cooked has a magnificent flavor unto the second and third appearance. It is also nice with rice. For such a hen, as well as other poultry and rabbits, call 1492-J.

Up in his studio on top of the hill HOWELL ARMOR, woodcarver of Carmel Woods, may be found hard at work with gouge and rasp when he is not busy with his adult school classes on Wednesday and Friday night at Carmel High School. Mr. Armor is making a copy of his Tahitian bench with Tahitian gods for legs and also working on another set of salad plates in beautiful Koa wood, decorated with tropical flowers. The Armor studio is a most pleasant smelling room scented with logs of bay and cherry and walnut, well-seasoned, but carrying still their natural scent. Call 1450-M and see what of Mr. Armor's wares is made for your home.

GAIL COUPE is the name of both the new dress shop on the land side of San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth and the lady who presides therein. This morning Mrs. Coupé showed us several beautiful pure wool gabardine suits, some with the tiny jackets and ballerina skirts for small figures, others with fine box jackets, and a group of pure wool jersey dresses in high colors styled by Merley in sizes 9 to 15, with most simple and becoming lines and a particularly becoming price—17.95.

A good small radio at a reasonable price may be purchased at RADIO SERVICE BY BAYARD on Sixth between Dolores and San Carlos. These radios are RCA radiolas, five tube sets of considerable power and good tone. The cases are simple plastic ones in either walnut or white, and the price is $21.00 for the walnut one and $23.95 for the plain cases. BAYARD still has the Webster record changers, some of which are complete units in themselves and some of which play through radios. Complete service, construction, rehabilitation and repair for radios and Victrolas is yours at RADIO SERVICE BY BAYARD.

From a probably pre-Columbian stratum some 400 feet underground comes one of the priceless pots in THE DESERT CRAFTS SHOP in Monterey on 366 Scott Street, down from the First Theatre. This is not for sale but you'll find in the shop most beautiful soft buckskin moccasins, some beaded with flamboyance and some with restraint, and strong soft gloves of wonderful skins, and some of the toughest characters yet seen on the Peninsula in the dolls made by an aged Indian with ancient apples. Klondike Kate and other early settlers of unhallowed memory come to pungent life in these pi-quant dolls.

ject is "Probation after Death."

Included in the sermon are the following citations:

Revelation: "And I John saw the holy city, ney Jerusalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God. And God shall wipe

Boy Scout News

Carmel Boy Scout activities are again in full swing for the coming year. Troop 86, sponsored by the American Legion, is meeting regularly on Wednesday evenings at the Carmel Scout House. Newest recruit in the Troop is Allan Reyburn, former Scout in Petaluma,
California, and son of High School
instructor Harlan Reyburn.

Holy Name Society Troop 32
meets at the Scout House on Thursday evenings with Scout Dad
Wallace Doolittle helping Scoutmaster Carl Bensberg with the troop program.

American Legion Ship 86 is meeting in the Scout House on Tuesday night under the leadership of W. E. Viljoen. Commander
John Chitwood, U.S.N., retired, has succeeded Cy Johnson as Ship Committee Chairman. Johnson has been of splendid help to the Sea Scouts during the past year, having been largely responsible for the acquisition of the auxiliary sloop donated by Los Angeles business man, Malcolm McNaughten.
Though giving up the chairmanship of the committee, Johnson will continue as a member.

Troop 39 is not at present active, and there is a possibility that, following a study of a boy fact survey taken in the local schools, it may not be reactivated.

Lions Club Cub Pack 3 is planning to have Den meetings beginning the week of November 3. Doubt has been expressed as to availability of meeting places in the homes of Cub members of the Pack. Hilary Helsley, Field Scout Executive residing on the Peninsula, in conference with Pack leaders Tuesday of this week was quoted as saying that Cub Den meetings which take Den Mothers and Cubs away from home and neighborhood surroundings are contrary to the essential home-centered character of the Cubbing program, and that meeting places such as the Scout House are not desirable for Cubbing except for monthly Pack meetings. He pointed out that, in view of the fact that many Carmel residences have but limited space to meet once a week in the afternoon, Den meeting programs could be easily tailored to fit individual situations.

Explorer Post Committee Chairman Kenneth Roberts of Fire Department Post 39 is looking for someone to replace Howard Byrne who has resigned as Post Advisor.

theme:

Carmelites See N. Y. Opening Of Jeffers' Medea

Dr. and Mrs. Remsen Bird were in New York for the opening performance of Robinson Jeffers' Medea, and he writes: "It was good to see Mr. Jeffers and Mrs. Jeffers up there in the box and to have the light turned on them and to have them receive the adulation of the audience and the kisses thrown by the great actress—perhaps the greatest of our times! The comments of the critics only vary in the ability of the writers to find the appropriate words of praise!"

Dr. Bird encloses a notice by Brooks Atkinson that is typical of the recognition which Mr. Jeffers' play is receiving:

"If Medea does not entirely understand every aspect of her whirling character, she would do well to consult Judith Anderson. For Miss Anderson understands the character more thoroughly than Medea, Euripides or the scholars, and it would be useless now for anyone else to attempt the part. Using a new text by Robinson Jeffers, she set a landmark in the theatre, giving a burning performance in a savage part."

"Mr. Jeffers' 'free adaptation,' as it is called, spares the supernatural bogeymen of the classical Greek drama and gets on briskly with the terrifying story of a woman obsessed with revenge. His verse is modern; his words are sharp and vivid, and his text does not worship gods that are dead... Judith Anderson has freed Medea from all the old traditions as if the character had just been created. Perhaps that is exactly what has happened."

FIRE AT LA PLAYA RANCH

Last Sunday afternoon the Division of Forestry was called out for a fire that started in the grass and brush on La Playa Ranch in the Valley. Three of the foresters and 15 volunteers fought the fire, but it spread over four acres before it was brought under control.

Stephen G. Herrick of Berkeley, and his son, Stephen, returned home after a visit with Mr. Herrick's mother, Mrs. Mabel Herrick of Torres Street.

Leave For A Christening

Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Walker of Carmel Woods will leave for Los Angeles Friday, to be present at the christening of their newest grandson, Steven Wood Walker, son of the junior Walkers of Uplands, California. The ceremony will take place at the Episcopal Church at Uplands, and the young man will be christened by his grandfather, Rev. L. A. Wood, who is arriving in Uplands from Fresno for the occasion. The stay of the Carmel Woods Walkers in the southland will be indefinite in length.

Bundles For Berlin

Youth Fellowship of the Church of the Wayfarer are all excited about adopting a needy family in the British sector of Berlin. The young people got, through the Friends Society, the name of this family of a mother and six minor children whose father is still a prisoner of war. Youth Fellowship will send clothing and food packages in time to reach Berlin by Christmas and will immediately establish correspondence with them. As usual the young people will hold their weekly meeting in the social hall of the church, Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, with a pot-luck supper followed by a hymn sing and then a playtime.

Housewarming

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Angwin gave their first entertainment in their new home on Jack's Peak Wednesday evening, when they served dinner to Laidlaw Williams, Mr.

and Mrs. Robert E. Peck, Florence Morrow, Mrs. Isabelle Terhune,

Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte and Alexander Sprunt, Jr., the National Audubon Society speaker from South Carolina. Their home is situated so that views from all sides can be enjoyed through their plate glass windows, every detail planned by Dr. Angwin himself for the housing of the art objects he and his wife have collected in many parts of the world. After the dinner the party repaired to the Sunset Auditorium where nearly 500 men and women were assembled to hear Mr. Sprunt's address.

Carmel Reaches 60 Percent Of Its Chest Quota

John B. Morse, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest, announces that the drive at present is at the halfway mark of the goal of $53,000. As usual, Carmel is in the advance with 60 percent of its quota for this year already in its coffers.

With three new agencies in the chest—The Carmel Boys Club, the New Monterey Boys Club and the Grove Junior "REC" Club, in addition to the original eleven agencies, Alfred G. Fry, Vice President of the Community Chest, states it is essential that the total goal be realized. Agencies of particular interest to Carmel are the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, the Carmel Well Baby Clinic under the direct supervision of the PTA, and the Carmel Boys Club.

Bud Foster and Betty Carr, co-chairmen, announce they are intensifying their efforts so that the drive will be finished before November 1.

Representative Citizens Heard Over Air Friday

Carmel Day for the Woman's Magazine of the Air was broadcast over NBC network at 8:30 last Friday morning from La Playa dining room where hundreds of Carmelites assembled for coffee and super doughnuts.

Jane Lee opened the program with a historical account of Carmel, and Mrs. Carmalita Benson, as M.C., interviewed Dr. K. Fillmore Gray of the Church of the Wayfarer, which organization was sponsoring the event. Al Frey, manager of La Playa Hotel, was next interviewed, and then Nellie Montague, curator of the Art Gallery, followed by Noel Sullivan, Edward Kuster and Herbert Heron.
